Our Definition of Done

A component is considered done and ready to merge to our master branch when more than one member has reviewed and approved of the functionality of the tentative branch that the new component was built in, and (when merged into dev) it has been manually tested, as well as automatically tested using our JEST testing framework, to ensure successful integration, no conflicts, and proper coverage of the corresponding user story.

Style Guide

General Guideline: Create separate pages for each major functionality (i.e. homepage, inbox, etc.), with rectangular popup windows for smaller functionalities (i.e. viewing User information card).

→ Put the code files of each page into separate folders under the frontend section of our code directory.

→ Keep to the color scheme of orange and white, with potential grey accents.

→ Implement the pages as close to the Figma designs as possible.

→ Use nested containers to implement the Figma layouts.

→ Load all icons as SVGs under the "images" folder in the frontend directory. Do not load icons in the code as hyperlinks.

→ Keep CSS code neat and aligned, and ensure that the exit or back arrow icon is linked to the Homepage to uphold page flow.
